

Task 2

In multiparous with blood group A (II) Rh- at the 34th week of pregnancy revealed titer Rh antibody 1:64. Ultrasound of the fetus was diagnosed with hepatosplenomegaly, ascites, and an increase in the thickness of the placenta to 6 cm. According to the CTG of the fetus, a monotonous rhythm of heart activity is observed. The optical density of the bilirubin indicator of amniotic fluid is 0.42 UE.

1. Interpretation of objective / laboratory data.
2. Formulation of a preliminary diagnosis based on the detection of pathological changes.
3. Appointment of additional methods of examination to confirm the diagnosis.
4. Determining treatment tactics.